Advice needed:
I raised concerns @PubPeer and to EiC about Western blots in a journal. Authors did not respond.
Journal said they got original blots and they look fine, but will not release originals unless authors agree. I ask authors, but they don't respond.
What to do?

Elisabeth Bik @MicrobiomDigest · Nov 10, 2021
OK, this situation has evolved in the past hour. The journal did post some of the original scans in an Erratum online today. I am still concerned, but applaud this decision.

and the Erratum with the original blots:

Not sure if these are X rays, though. No MW markers, no film edges.

Colluding attacks that resulted in investors' losses are crimes. Just so you know. Why dont you call doctors and clinical trial centers frauds? @CassavaSciences $sava

DrBrainBlast @brainblast3000 · Nov 13, 2021

Only if the claims are false and they knew that. Hurting your feelings or investment isn't a crime. Any scientist without blinders on can see clearly see the long pattern of fraud. the vast majority of biotech's don't go through all this, bc they don't commit blatant fraud

Ddd @gaomesi · Nov 13, 2021

They made speculations and accusations, without any hard evidence. A piece of advice: SEC @SECGov

DrBrainBlast @brainblast3000 · Nov 13, 2021

I mean the evidence is right there, you just have to see it. As I said, it's very clear to anyone without blinders on. You can go look at the published images yourself.

Ddd @gaomesi · Nov 13, 2021

I dont see any evidence. Here is attackers' logic: we wanna accuse $sava of fraud, but shoot, sava's clinical trials gave so darn good data, what should we do? OK, lets find a research article that was published long time ago, pick some photos and say, hey look, fraud!

Ddd @gaomesi · Nov 13, 2021

What's more, the timing of the accusations was just right for shorts. @MicrobiomDigest @Adrian_H see this post: twitter.com/lawrenceshaw82...
As in my another tweet, why not prove you didnt launch funded colluding malicious attacks? If you cannot, then you did it by your logic.

Ddd @gaomesi · Nov 13, 2021

Come on, give me break. If you are really scientists, why do you monitored the market and tracked the CP? You are interested in the stock not their science.

DrBrainBlast @brainblast3000 · Nov 13, 2021

so now your argument is scientists can't be investors? If you can't see how ridiculous that is then I don't think there's much more to discuss

Ddd @gaomesi · Nov 13, 2021

Hahah you are either blind to my argument, or saying @MicrobiomDigest and @Adrian\_H are shorting the stock. If the latter is true, I think they are in trouble.

DrBrainBlast @brainblast3000 · Nov 13, 2021

so what's your argument? Bc it seems like you're saying actual scientists shouldn't invest

Ddd @gaomesi · Nov 13, 2021

Hey, again, if they are investors, they must be shorting \$sava. Otherwise why would they bash it if they are long. Then they are in trouble, don't you think?

DrBrainBlast @brainblast3000 · Nov 13, 2021

and why do so many uninformed non scientists religiously support a company with more red flags than a bull fight? Must be out of the goodness of your hearts right, and not any monetary position?

Ddd @gaomesi · Nov 13, 2021

So you are admitting they are shorting \$sava. Did they ever disclose that? Not as far as I know. Then holding their short positions while publishing unconfirmed speculations repeatedly in coordination is called stock manipulation. Even the dude who wrote the CP knew it.

DrBrainBlast @brainblast3000 · Nov 13, 2021

Adrian has multiple times from what I've seen. Dr. Bik has said she's not. it's only stock manipulation if it's false and they know it's false. But please keep spewing.

And despite all you and your team's resistance and FUD, P3 continues to move forward. While you keep searching, keep stomping your feet, P3 will keep going.

Vinnie @Vinnie66007649 · Nov 14, 2021

The P3 train has started and gaining speed, knock out FUDsters on the track. It's too late to jump onboard. SEC is to investigate manipulation. Stay tune. Lol

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 14, 2021

Well there are clearly Administrative Actions under 21CFR312.42 (or even 21CFR312.44) that are in place for these situations, where there is strong evidence that the data provided is inherently untrue/doctored, and thus can't meet the standards in 21CFR312.22(a).

Lawrence Shaw @lawrenceshaw82 · Nov 14, 2021

Stop quoting irrelevant stuff as a scare tactic. I can dig and quote SEC rules about naked shorting, market manipulation with attacks against a public company, collusion, etc. 🤔 Where's your "strong evidence" of data material to FDA being untrue or doctored??

There are risks and complex science wrt MoA isnt clear cut. Besides the preclinical experiments in a handful of mice, one has to rely on clinical data. You are relying on the low odds of a big network of frauds that @US_FDA hasn't caught. Good luck. I'll congratulate you if right

I think you are strawmanning some of the narratives around SAVA when you say "big network of frauds". Its an unfair diminution of whats happening. It's more like a confluence of genuine fraud (Wang, p-hacking in P2 data) and then oversight/laziness from Journals + regulators

Lawrence Shaw @lawrenceshaw82 · Nov 14, 2021

P-hacking applies to Wang? Check out Jesse tweets and QCM reports. Apparently it's Wang, Remi, Lindsay, Boris from IMIC and many others in on this. How am I incorrect in my characterization?

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 14, 2021

No, that is why I put the comma between Wang and p-hacking. Sorry I wasn't clear, p-hacking does not apply to Wang. The p-hacking is another skeleton in the closet that has to do with their P2 data. I had suspicions about $SAVA using P2 p-hacking even before the CP came out lol

Lawrence Shaw @lawrenceshaw82 · Nov 14, 2021

Just to be clear, the p hacking you are referring to applies to plasma ptau data in SavaDx poster? Or in more places?

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 14, 2021

I am referring to the p-hacking in their ADAS-Cog11 P2 data. But yes was also some p-hacking in the biomarker data, like the CSF tau/Ab42 ratios & the baseline CSF Ab42 grand mean showing some incongruity with the group means.

Lawrence Shaw @lawrenceshaw82 · Nov 14, 2021

Ok. Let's focus on adas cog 11 as it's a primary outcome for approval. By p hacking there, I am guessing you are alleging cherry picking of the first 50 patients reported and don't believe the cohort is ordered by completion time?

Yes, basically Cassava used suspect exclusionary criteria to change the patient mix and shift baselines to reflect dramatic improvement in ADAS-Cog11 when there really was none.

"When there really was none" ?Like you saw the raw data and audited it yourself. 🤔

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 14, 2021
SAVA stopped providing any raw baseline cog score data. The avg cognitive scores remained stable while the baselines moved a lot, which happened bc of patient mix change. The baselines moved w so much magnitude that the new patients needed scores 2 std devs > the original cohort

Lawrence Shaw @lawrenceshaw82 · Nov 14, 2021
If Cassava shares drop outs data early and later in the study, and we see how that explains the data along with the overall <10% dropouts over a long duration, we will revisit this conversation :) suggest you atleast skim through a branch of statistics called "survival analysis"

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 14, 2021
Care to elaborate on how survival analysis would help absolve SAVA of p-hacking concerns? I cannot provide examples of other biopharma companies providing detailed patient-dropout data in P2. So you might be right, but I have doubts SAVA will ever rectify it.

Lawrence Shaw @lawrenceshaw82 · Nov 14, 2021
Simplistic analogy but longer ppl survive an experiment, longer they stay. Fine grained drop out rates drastically reduce with time. Cassava's latest data at 12 month with little baseline mean change indicates that. Check out proportion of survival plateauing in attached curve.

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 14, 2021
The latest baseline data was released? I thought the 9 month follow up was released in September and the next follow up at 12 months

"Oh". LOL!

So in other words, once they stop messing around with the population that they report, there's no more improvement.

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 14, 2021
Exactly. Their minimal increase in baseline score at this 12-month mark isn't an absolution from p-hacking, it actually sheds even more light on the p-hacking within their previous data releases.

For someone who didn't know this number was released at CTAD, you sure do talk a lot. 😊 Take a break and give a chance for other friends of yours continue.

Arka @arkabagchi24 · Nov 15, 2021
I didn't realize this was the official follow up data. It's not like they made any filings or PR release for this.
But I do find it interest how the current 12 month follow up seems to indicate no baseline change essentially, after a few months of rapid baseline change.

Of course you do. I don't blame you when you just wait for Adrian message (which I can't see due to his blocking habits) to make the shorts feel better about their bets. Good night Sir.

What? Just wondering: does the recent CTAD presentation cognitive-baseline score data explain away that the first baseline change from 15.5 to 16.6 would have required replacement subjects with a mean cognitive score that has a 0.21% chance of occurrence?

They don't care about the actual concerns Arka. Just move on. This will be an important lesson. Biotech frauds, especially in NDDs, come and go all the time. This is just the first they're experiencing.

If you're so sure it will crash, why do you tweet about it constantly? Just let it crash....or, maybe you're not so sure.

I could ask the same about you if you are so sure it will succeed.

Jake Atchley @jake_snake20 · Nov 15, 2021 ...
That's the difference, the Longs you've been battling don't guarantee it will work. We like what we've seen so far, most of us have family members affected by AD, but every single one of us know that it's not a guarantee. You all keep telling us IT WILL fail.

Adrian H @Adrian_H ...
We know IT WILL fail because we see and understand that the biology was MADE UP. It is not a matter of hope, or optimism, or liking what one sees — it is all fabricated nonsense. If you cannot understand or admit this to yourself by now, you are going to be Remi's bagholder.

Then just move on to your next short position. You don't need any data, originals. You've made your conclusion. But, if you're so sure, why are you running your own study to disprove it. If you already know for sure you wouldn't waste your time. Admit it you're not

I am sure, but a lot of people have still been fooled and need convincing.

No, your not. From the data that's been presented, you're "100% sure it will fail", remember. If you can't convince others from the data you already have, then it's not conclusive it will fail. You're smart, you can understand this, no?

No. Much of the "data that's been presented" has been fabricated or manipulated. If people take that data at face value, it makes sense that they would have hope for the drug. It's not so easy to disabuse cult members from something they've committed to, nor do I care to try.
